

COMPANY HANDBOOK

The success of any organisation and that of its employees depends very largely on the employees themselves, and so we look to you to play your part as we shall continue to play ours.

This Handbook sets out the Company's main policies and procedures as well as a summary of the rules. Where there are different or additional arrangements for particular employees these are expressly set out separately in writing to the individuals concerned.

The Handbook is non contractual and the Company reserves the right to amend the Handbook from time to time, without notice if necessary. Such changes will be communicated via the notice boards.

We ask that you study carefully the contents of this Handbook, as in addition to setting out our rules and regulations, it also contains a great deal of helpful information. When you join the Company you will be issued with a Statement of Terms and Conditions of Employment, these should be read in conjunction with this Handbook.

If you have any questions regarding the contents of this Handbook, please contact your Line Manager.

The organisation collects and processes personal data relating its employees to manage the employment relationship. The organisation is committed to being transparent about how it collects and uses that data and to meeting its data protection obligations.

What information does the organisation collect?

The organisation collects and processes a range of information about you. This includes:

- your name, address and contact details, including email address and telephone number, date of birth and gender;
- the terms and conditions of your employment;
- details of your qualifications, skills, experience and employment history, including start and end dates, with previous employers and with the organisation;
- information about your remuneration, including entitlement to benefits such as pensions or insurance cover;
- details of your bank account and national insurance number;
- information about your marital status, next of kin, dependants and emergency contacts;
- information about your nationality and entitlement to work in the UK;
- information about your criminal record;
- details of your schedule (days of work and working hours) and attendance at work;
- details of periods of leave taken by you, including holiday, sickness absence, family leave and sabbaticals, and the reasons for the leave;
- details of any disciplinary or grievance procedures in which you have been involved, including any warnings issued to you and related correspondence;
- assessments of your performance, including appraisals, performance reviews and ratings, performance improvement plans and related correspondence;
- information about medical or health conditions, including whether or not you have a disability for which the organisation needs to make reasonable adjustments; and
- equal opportunities monitoring information including information about your ethnic origin, sexual orientation and religion or belief.

The organisation may collect this information in a variety of ways. For example, data might be collected through application forms, CVs or resumes; obtained from your passport or other identity documents such as your driving licence; from forms completed by you at the start of or during employment (such as benefit nomination forms); from correspondence with you; or through interviews, meetings or other assessments.

In some cases, the organisation may collect personal data about you from third parties, such as references supplied by former employers, information from employment background check providers, information from credit reference agencies and information from criminal records checks permitted by law.

Data will be stored in a range of different places, including in your personnel file, in the organisation's HR management systems and in other IT systems (including the organisation's email system).

Why does the organisation process personal data?

The organisation needs to process data to enter into an employment contract with you and to meet its obligations under your employment contract. For example, it needs to process your data to provide you with an employment contract, to pay you in accordance with your employment contract and to administer benefit, pension and insurance entitlements.

In some cases, the organisation needs to process data to ensure that it is complying with its legal obligations. For example, it is required to check an employee's entitlement to work in the UK, to deduct tax, to comply with health and safety laws and to enable employees to take periods of leave to which they are entitled.

In other cases, the organisation has a legitimate interest in processing personal data before, during and after the end of the employment relationship. Processing employee data allows the organisation to:

- run recruitment and promotion processes;
- maintain accurate and up-to-date employment records and contact details (including details of who to contact in the event of an emergency), and records of employee contractual and statutory rights;
- operate and keep a record of disciplinary and grievance processes, to ensure acceptable conduct within the workplace;
- operate and keep a record of employee performance and related processes, to plan for career development, and for succession planning and workforce management purposes;
- operate and keep a record of absence and absence management procedures, to allow effective workforce management and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- obtain occupational health advice, to ensure that it complies with duties in relation to individuals with disabilities, meet its obligations under health and safety law, and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- operate and keep a record of other types of leave (including maternity, paternity, adoption, parental and shared parental leave), to allow effective workforce management, to ensure that the organisation complies with duties in relation to leave entitlement, and to ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- ensure effective general HR and business administration;
- provide references on request for current or former employees; and
- respond to and defend against legal claims.

Some special categories of personal data, such as information about health or medical conditions, is processed to carry out employment law obligations (such as those in relation to employees with disabilities).

Where the organisation processes other special categories of personal data, such as information about ethnic origin, sexual orientation or religion or belief, this is done for the purposes of equal opportunities monitoring. This is to carry out its obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

Who has access to data?

Your information may be shared internally, including with HR (including payroll), your line manager, managers in the business area in which you work and IT staff if access to the data is necessary for performance of their roles.

The organisation shares your data with third parties in order to obtain pre-employment references from other employers, obtain employment background checks from third-party providers and obtain necessary criminal records checks from the Disclosure and Barring Service. The organisation may also share your data with third parties in the context of a sale of some or all of its business. In those circumstances the data will be subject to confidentiality arrangements.

The organisation also shares your data with third parties that process data on its behalf, in connection with payroll, the provision of benefits and the provision of occupational health services.

The organisation will not transfer your data to countries outside the European Economic Area.

How does the organisation protect data?

The organisation takes the security of your data seriously. The organisation has internal policies and controls in place to try to ensure that your data is not lost, accidentally destroyed, misused or disclosed, and is not accessed except by its employees in the performance of their duties.

Where the organisation engages third parties to process personal data on its behalf, they do so on the basis of written instructions, are under a duty of confidentiality and are obliged to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure the security of data.

For how long does the organisation keep data?

The organisation will hold your personal data for the duration of your employment. The periods for which your data is held after the end of employment are:

- Accident Records: Minimum of 3 years since the last entry
- Income Tax and NI: Minimum of 3 years from the end of the financial year to which they relate.
- Maternity and Paternity: Minimum of 3 years from the end of the tax year in which the leave ends.
- Salary and Pay: Minimum of 6 years.
- Working Time: 2 years.
- Application and Recruitment Records: 6-12 months.
- Parental Leave: 5 years from birth or adoption, or 18 years if the child receives a disability allowance.

- Pension Benefits: 12 years from the ending of any benefit payable.
- All Personnel Files and Training Records: 6 years from the end of employment.
- Redundancy Records: 6 years.
- Sickness Absence Records: A minimum of 3 months but potentially up to 6 years after employment ends.

Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights. You can:

- access and obtain a copy of your data on request;
- require the organisation to change incorrect or incomplete data;
- require the organisation to delete or stop processing your data, for example where the data is no longer necessary for the purposes of processing; and
- object to the processing of your data where the organisation is relying on its legitimate interests as the legal ground for processing.

If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact GDPR@mossspark.org.uk

If you believe that the organisation has not complied with your data protection rights, you can complain to the Information Commissioner.

What if you do not provide personal data?

You have some obligations under your employment contract to provide the organisation with data. In particular, you are required to report absences from work and may be required to provide information about disciplinary or other matters under the implied duty of good faith. You may also have to provide the organisation with data in order to exercise your statutory rights, such as in relation to statutory leave entitlements. Failing to provide the data may mean that you are unable to exercise your statutory rights.

Certain information, such as contact details, your right to work in the UK and payment details, have to be provided to enable the organisation to enter a contract of employment with you. If you do not provide other information, this will hinder the organisation's ability to administer the rights and obligations arising as a result of the employment relationship efficiently.

The Company is committed to the principle of equal opportunities in recruitment and employment and is opposed to any form of less favourable treatment through direct or indirect discrimination, harassment or victimisation of employees or job applicants. The Company is opposed to discrimination on the grounds of race, religion or belief, political opinions, creed, colour, ethnic origin, nationality, marital/parental status, sex, sexual orientation, gender reassignment, age or disability.

The Company will promote equal opportunities to ensure that individuals receive treatment that is fair and equitable and consistent with their potential skills and abilities. Employees will be recruited, selected, promoted and trained on the basis of objective criteria.

Any employee that feels they have been treated unfairly or subjected to direct or indirect unfair discrimination can raise the matter through the appropriate grievance procedure. Every effort will be made to secure a satisfactory resolution. Any employee making a complaint of unfair discrimination will be protected from any victimisation in any form.

We will not discriminate against anyone who has a spent conviction under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974.

The overall responsibility of the policy lies with senior management however all employees are required to comply with the policy and to act in accordance with its objectives so as to remove any barriers to equal opportunity. Any act of discrimination by employees or any failure to comply with the terms of the policy is a potential disciplinary matter.

Given the nature of the working environment it is very important that all employees observe good hygiene practices and in particular wash hands on frequent basis. In addition:

1. Any exposed cut or burn must be covered with a first-aid dressing.
2. If you are suffering from an infectious or contagious disease or illness such as rubella or hepatitis you must not report for work without clearance from your own doctor.
3. Contact with any person suffering from an infectious or contagious disease must be reported before commencing work.
4. PPE where provided must be worn at all times.

Harassment, Sexual Harassment, Bullying and Victimisation

The Company is committed to providing a workplace that is safe, respectful, and supportive for everyone. We do not tolerate any form of harassment, sexual harassment, bullying, or victimisation. These behaviours are harmful and unacceptable in our work environment.

Harassment, including sexual harassment, can take many forms, such as offensive comments, threats, unwanted physical contact, or any behaviour intended to intimidate, degrade, or humiliate someone based on personal characteristics like race, gender, sexual orientation, or other protected traits.

Sexual harassment involves unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favours, or other conduct of a sexual nature that creates a hostile or uncomfortable work environment.

Bullying refers to repeated, unreasonable actions intended to undermine or harm another individual, whether through verbal, physical, or psychological means.

Victimisation occurs when someone is treated unfairly or subjected to harm because they have made or supported a complaint of harassment or other misconduct. This is also strictly prohibited.

The Company will take all allegations of harassment, sexual harassment, bullying, and victimisation very seriously. We are committed to resolving any complaints sensitively, impartially, effectively, and as quickly as possible. If you experience or witness any such behaviour, we encourage you to report it immediately. Please refer to our Anti-Harassment Policies for more detailed information, including how to report concerns and the steps that will be taken to address them.

Holidays

Holiday Year

The holiday year runs from 1 January to 31 December.

Holiday Entitlement

Your holiday entitlement is stated in your individual Terms and Conditions of Employment.

Holiday Requests

Requests will only be considered if requested through the HR Online System and the Company will approve requests on a 'first come, first served' basis to ensure minimum staffing levels are maintained throughout the year. Holiday requests may be refused in order to ensure operational efficiency of department/business.

In order to plan for authorised holidays, the following notice period is required for submission of a holiday request form. This notice period should, in the norm, be adhered to. The Company recognises that circumstances can arise where this notice period cannot be adhered. These should be discussed with your Line Manager.

No of Days Holiday	Notice Required
One	One Weeks Notice
One Week	Two Weeks Notice
Two Weeks	One Months Notice

Any employee requesting more than two weeks holiday in one block must seek the approval of a Director.

Part Time Workers

If a part time employee works for less than 5 days per week, holiday entitlement will be calculated on a pro-rata basis in accordance with the number of days or hours worked per week.

Unused Holidays

If an employee does not take all their holidays in a year they will lose any days that they have not taken.

Holidays on Leaving

In the case of an employee leaving the Company, it will be at Management's discretion whether to allow holidays to be taken as part of the notice period. Any unused days will be paid in the employee's final payment.

If an employee has taken more holidays than accrued then a deduction will be made from his/her's final payment.

Sickness Absence and Holidays

See Section on Sickness Absence.

Attendance Management

Introduction

The Mossspark Group of companies aims to encourage all employees to maximise their attendance at work. However, it is recognised that a certain level of absence from work is often inevitable for a variety of reasons, including sickness.

While the organisation understands that there will be some absence among employees, it must also pay due regard to its business needs. If an employee is frequently late or absent from work or is absent for a lengthy period (for whatever reasons), this can damage efficiency and productivity, and place an additional burden of work on the employee's colleagues. By implementing this policy the organisation aims to strike a reasonable balance between the pursuit of its business needs and the genuine needs of employees. The key aim of this policy is to encourage reliable attendance among all employees, so that a dependable staffing base can be established to meet the organisation's needs.

This policy is structured as follows:

Section A – Timekeeping

Section B – Sickness Absence

Section C – Attendance Management (covers timekeeping and sickness absence)

Absence for other reasons (ie not sickness related, is covered in the next policy within the Handbook – ‘Absence for Other Reasons’).

The application of this attendance policy does not imply that an employee’s absence is not genuine. The procedure is a means of managing attendance, which includes the management of genuine absences.

Section A - Timekeeping

Notification of Lateness

Employees are expected to be at their work station, ready to start work, at their scheduled start time. If an employee is more than five minutes late for work they must immediately report to management with an explanation, before starting work. If an employee is more than 20 minutes late, and alternative arrangements have been made to cover the employee’s work, the employee may be sent home without pay.

Leaving Site Before Scheduled Finish Time

If an employee needs to leave work before their scheduled finish time they should obtain prior authority from management. An explanation or appropriate evidence should be provided. Please note that failure to seek approval prior to leaving may result in serious disciplinary action.

Clocking In and Out

It is the employee’s responsibility to use the clocking in and out facilities designated to them. Clocking in or out for another employee is considered a serious disciplinary offence. If an employee has an issue with the clock terminal or the online clocking system, they must make their manager or HR aware as soon as possible.

Section B - Absence

All employee absences will be counted for the purpose of this policy except for approved holidays, family leave periods (eg maternity/paternity leave), approved compassionate leave or pregnancy-related absences.

If an employee has a chronic illness or disability, or if a number of absences are linked to one illness, referral should be made to the HR before issuing a formal warning. In some circumstances the employee may be issued with a separate set of absence level trigger points or some absences may be disregarded completely at the discretion of management. This will normally involve seeking advice from Occupational Health in the first instance. Examples include 1) where an employee has fallen seriously ill (eg suffered from a heart attack), 2) has tried to return to work but after a short period of time at work has had to go absent again. 3) where an employee has a disability as defined by the Equality Act 2010.

Notification of Absence

Unless an absence has been authorised in advance any employee absent from work for any reason must notify their line manager within 30 minutes of their normal start time. Notification must be made by telephone to the employee's line manager, indicating the reason for absence and the likely date of return. If the employee's line manager is not available, the employee should speak to another supervisor or manager. Unless the employee is unable to, employees rather than their representatives must contact the Company. Please note that text messages or messages via other work colleagues or reception are not acceptable.

If, in exceptional circumstances (eg hospitalisation) the employee is unable to phone themselves, someone should phone for them but then the employee should phone themselves as soon as it is practical to do so.

For the first 7 days of absence, the employee should phone in every day. If the absence lasts for more than 7 days, the employee should phone in every week. Line managers may advise of different arrangements if more appropriate.

When notifying the line manager of the absence, the following details should be given:

- Why the employee is unable to attend work
- How long the absence is likely to last for
- What action the employee is taking to alleviate the duration of the absence eg visit to GP
- Details of where the employee will be during the day

The line manager (or substitute) may ask additional appropriate questions. Consideration may also be given to whether there is alternative work that the employee would be able to perform, and therefore be able to attend work. There is however no guarantee that this will be the case.

Certification

Where the absence lasts 7 calendar days or less, a self-certification form must be completed upon return to work.

If an absence lasts for more than 7 calendar days the employee should obtain a medical certificate (known as a 'Fit Note') from his/her doctor. This should cover Day 8 onwards and should be forwarded to the Wages Office without delay. The employee must also complete a self-certification form when they return to work. Once an employee has been absent for four weeks, this will be classed as long term absence.

There may be occasions when we ask you to submit a medical certificate for an absence of less than 8 calendar days. Such a request will be confirmed in writing. For example:

- If an employee is absent the day before or after a holiday or bank holiday
- If an employee is absent as a result of a suspected industrial injury
- If an employee was sick during a holiday (see section below).

We will not pay SSP where in our opinion:

- The employee has entered false information on any form

- The employee has failed to follow policy and rules
- There are serious doubts about the circumstances surrounding the claims for SSP.

Medical Reports

During an absence, or following return to work, the Company can require the employee to be examined by his or her GP or a doctor of the Company's choice. The employee will be notified in advance if such action is planned and the employee will be informed of their rights.

Impact on Holidays during Sickness Absence

An employee who is unwell during an agreed holiday period, either a statutory holiday or annual, is considered to be on holiday.

However, at the employee's request, if the employee falls ill before the start of the holiday period and continues to be ill for all of that period, they can be deemed to be absent due to sickness provided they are medically certified throughout and remain contactable for the duration of their certificate. These holidays can then be taken at a later date. Employees must contact their Manager at the time of absence to arrange this.

Statutory Sick Pay

In line with statutory provisions, employees are entitled to statutory sick pay (SSP) during absence due to sickness or injury, provided they meet the criteria in SSP regulations and follow the Company's absence reporting procedures.

Eligible employees will be paid SSP by the Company. SSP is treated as earnings and is subject to Income Tax and National Insurance contributions.

SSP is payable for up to 28 weeks for qualifying days—these are the days you would normally be required to work under your contract.

Any additional sickness or injury payments that qualify for SSP will be offset against SSP on a day-to-day basis. SSP may also be adjusted if you are receiving other state benefits that affect your entitlement.

If you receive compensation or damages from a third party in respect of your incapacity, any SSP or additional payments the Company has made in excess of SSP must be repaid, up to the amount of compensation received.

If you are not eligible for SSP, you may be able to claim Employment and Support Allowance (ESA). The Company will provide the necessary form to take to the Benefits Office.

General

Submission of a medical certificate, although giving the reason for absence, is not always regarded by the Company as sufficient justification for accepting the absence. Sickness is just one of a number of reasons for absence and although it is understandable that if an employee is sick they may need time off, continual or repeated absence through sickness may not be acceptable to the Company. The Company will also consider if the employee contributed to the time off in anyway eg. by taking part in activities or hobbies that could aggravate the problem; similarly if the employee continues to perform activities/hobbies/DIY or go on holiday etc whilst on sick leave.

In deciding whether the absence is acceptable or not the Company will take into account the reasons and extent of all absences, including any absence caused by sickness. The Company cannot operate with an excessive level of absence as all absence, for whatever reason, reduces efficiency.

The Company will take a serious view if an employee takes sickness/injury leave, which is not genuine, and it will result in disciplinary action being taken.

If considered necessary, the Company may ask permission to contact the employee's doctor or to request an independent medical examination. A copy of the employee's rights will be issued to the employee prior to this.

Alternative/Light Duties

If certified unfit to perform normal duties through sickness/injury, the Company reserves the right to require the employee to attend work and undertake any reasonable alternative/light duties, or work shorter hours, for the period of incapacity. In all cases due regard will be given to the nature of the sickness/injury and the individual's circumstances. Payment will be made dependent on the alternative duties and hours worked.

Returning to Work

Employees should notify their manager as soon as they know on which day they will be returning to work, if this differs from a date of return previously notified.

If the employee has been suffering from an infectious or contagious disease or illness they must not report to work without clearance from their doctor.

When returning to work, the employee should report to their line manager before they begin work. On return to work after any period of sickness/injury absence (including absence covered by a medical certificate), employees will be asked to complete a self-certification form.

Employees will also be required to attend a Return To Work Meeting which will be organised by the line manager. This will take place after every period of absence, regardless of duration (including occasions where employees have started a shift but did not complete it).

The purpose of the Return to Work Meeting is to ascertain the employee's well being, check that they are fit for work and to ascertain if any additional support or further action is required. The employee's absence record will also be checked at this meeting. A record will be made of the meeting and the absence details will be logged on the system and personnel file.

Section C – Attendance Management Procedure

Lateness and absences will be dealt with promptly. If the employee’s absence or lateness meets one of the levels indicated below, employees will be requested to attend a meeting which may result in informal or formal action being taken as follows:

Absence Level	Poor Timekeeping Level	Referral
3 periods of absence (of any duration) in a rolling 12 month period OR absence exceeds 3.5% over a rolling period of 12 months	More than 1 occasion of poor timekeeping in a calendar week or 3 in a 3 month rolling period	Informal counselling session. A file note will be created
A further 2 periods of absence within the 6 month period after the informal counselling session	A further 2 occurrence of lateness / early finish in the 6 month period after the informal counselling session	Referral to formal attendance management meeting, outcome may result in a verbal warning
A further period of absence within the 6 month period after the verbal warning	A further occurrence of lateness / early finish in the 6 month period after the issue of the verbal warning	Referral to formal attendance management meeting, outcome may result in written warning
A further period of absence within the 6 month period after the written warning	A further occurrence of lateness / early finish in the 6 month period after the issue of the written warning	Referral to disciplinary procedure, outcome may result in final written warning
A further period of absence within the 6 month period after the final written warning	A further occurrence of lateness / early finish in the 6 month period after the issue of the final written warning	Referral to disciplinary procedure, outcome may result in dismissal

Informal Counselling Sessions

These will normally be conducted by the Line Manager and will include:

- a. Ensuring the employee is aware that the absence record/timekeeping is giving cause for concern, discussing and listing the frequency and reasons.
- b. Advising the employee to seek proper medical attention if there is an underlying medical problem.
- c. Advising the employee that persistent short-term absences and/or timekeeping is unacceptable and put continued employment at risk.
- d. Giving consideration to any personal problems and possible ways of helping the employee to resolve them.
- e. Indicating what the next step will be if the employee fails to reach the standard required.

A note of the counselling session will be placed on the employees personnel file, and a copy given to the employee.

Formal meetings

These will follow a similar process to the Disciplinary Procedure:

- Employees will be invited to the meeting in writing.
- Employees will be given the opportunity to be accompanied by a work employee or trade union representative.
- Unless there are significant extenuating circumstances the employee will be issued with the appropriate counselling or formal warning. The fact that the reason for absence is a genuine one does not mean that a warning will not be issued.
- The outcome from the meeting will be confirmed to the employee in writing.
- There will be one right of appeal at stage 2, 3 and 4.

Dealing with Long Term Absence

1. Once an absence reaches 4 weeks in duration, this will be then be classed as Long Term.
2. Once Long Term, a contact plan will be agreed with the employee on a case by case basis.
3. The employee will be informed if their employment is at risk.
4. With the employee's permission, a medical report will be obtained, requesting information such as likely return to work date and what work the employee will be capable of.
5. On the basis of the medical report, the Company will consider whether alternative work is available. If the employee does provide permission to obtain a medical report, the Company will make a decision based on the information available to them.
6. Where the employee's job can no longer be kept open and no suitable alternative work is available and in the event Occupational Health or a professional Medical report states that a return to work is either unlikely or that there is no return to work on the horizon, the employee will be informed of the possibility of dismissal due to medical/capability reasons.
7. Where dismissal action is taken the employee will be informed of any right of appeal and a decision of dismissal will only be taken in light of information from formal capability meetings and with up to date information from professional medical reports such as Occupational Health. If an employee does not wish to consent to any medical reports at this stage, decision will then be made based on the information available.

Unauthorised Time Off

Time off without prior authorisation and not satisfactorily explained will not be paid for and will be dealt with as a disciplinary matter.

Bereavement Leave

Paid time off in such circumstances is not a right but is at the discretion of a Senior Manager based on his/her judgement of individual circumstances.

Emergency Time Off for Dependants

All employees are entitled to reasonable time off work without pay to deal with an emergency involving a dependant; for example, if a dependant falls ill or is injured, if care arrangements break down, or to arrange or attend a dependant's funeral. There is no set time limit to the amount of time off, however it should be appropriate to the circumstances. This right does not, for example, entitle the employee to take extended time off to look after a sick child – time off would be granted to allow the employee to make alternative child care arrangements.

Jury Duty

Time off will normally be granted to employees called for Jury Service unless this conflicts with critical company requirements when the Company will apply to the courts for exemption.

An employee called for Jury Service should claim an earnings allowance from the Court and pass the information to the office.

Military Reserve Duty

Employees liable for military reserve service, eg Territorial Army, Royal Naval Reserve, will be allowed up to 2 weeks unpaid leave per year to meet these obligations. At the request of the employee all or part of this leave period may be charged to the annual holiday entitlement.

Applications for leave for this purpose must be approved in advance by the Manager, having had sight of the employee's written confirmation. A Certificate of Attendance should also be submitted after the event.

Permission to attend will not be unreasonably refused, but for operational reasons the Company may find it impossible to agree to the requested dates.

Family Leave – Maternity, Paternity, Shared Parental, Parental Leave and Carers Leave

The company will comply with all current legal requirements to ensure employees have access to their full statutory entitlement. Please note that there are strict timing requirements with regards to requesting such leave – employees should contact the office as soon as possible to obtain full details.

Other Time Off

Circumstances may arise where you need time off for medical/dental appointments, or for other reasons. Where possible, such appointments should be made outside normal working hours. If this is not possible, time off required for these purposes may be granted at the discretion of your manager and will normally be without pay.

Notification

For unplanned time off, employees should follow the notification guidelines contained within the Attendance Management Policy.

Planned leave (except for family leave) should be requested through the normal holiday request procedure.

It is not anticipated that the occasion may arise when there will be a temporary cessation of work, but if such circumstances do arise because of a temporary reduction in the company's requirements for work, or because another occurrence is effecting normal working, the Company has the right to lay employees off during all or part of the period of temporary cessation, without pay, save for any entitlement under employees' statutory rights.

Employees who are laid off for the reasons outlined above may be entitled to a statutory guarantee payment. Further details would be discussed if the occasion arises.

Discipline Procedure

In order to ensure that the site operates effectively, it is necessary to maintain appropriate standards of conduct in relation to:

- company rules, policies and procedures
- attendance at work and
- levels and standards of performance.

Disciplinary procedures are necessary to ensure the fair and proper treatment of employees when disciplinary action is being considered. However it is recognized that many potential disciplinary issues can be resolved informally and that a quiet word is often all that is required to resolve an issue. However, where an issue cannot be resolved informally then it may be pursued formally using this procedure.

Employees are expected to be aware of their conditions of employment and expected standards of conduct and performance within the Company. Management is responsible for explaining company rules, conditions of employment and standards of performance and conduct to new employees.

The prime purpose of this procedure is to provide a guide for dealing with employees whose capability or conduct falls short of acceptable standards and to assist them to make the necessary improvements.

Principles

To help ensure the proper handling of disciplinary matters the following principles underpin the working of these procedures.

- No disciplinary action will be taken against an employee until the issue has been fully investigated. If possible the manager who chaired the investigation will not chair the Disciplinary Hearing.
- The employee will be made aware of the complaint against them and be given the opportunity to state their case.

- The employee has the right to be accompanied at any disciplinary hearing.
- No employee will be dismissed for a first breach of discipline, unless it is considered to be gross misconduct.
- The employee will have the right to appeal against any formal disciplinary action.
- The procedure may be implemented at any stage if the employee's alleged misconduct warrants such action.

The Procedure

Investigation

It should be made clear to employees that they are subject to an investigation as soon as is practicable.

Dependant on the nature and level of the disciplinary issue, the employee may be suspended on full pay whilst an investigation takes place.

Informal Counselling

Minor failings will be dealt with informally by a counselling session from the employee's Manager. They will make clear what the problem is and the improvements needed and will record a summary of the interview. The employee will also be reminded that a failure to improve could lead to formal disciplinary action.

The Process

The relevant Manager will inform the employee of the date, time, venue and reason for the hearing and their right to be accompanied by a work colleague or trade union representative, in writing.

Documentary evidence to be used at any disciplinary hearing should be made available to the employee beforehand and equally, evidence being produced by the employee should be given to the Company as far in advance as possible.

After listening to the employee's version of events, if the manager decides that disciplinary action is required, then a warning will be issued making clear the level of warning, the reasons for it, the improvements required, the consequences of failing to improve and the right and route of appeal.

A copy of the warning will be placed on the employee's personnel file.

Formal Verbal Warning

If the employee fails to improve after counselling, or if the offence is too serious to be handled by counselling, the matter may be referred to a disciplinary hearing and a verbal warning may be issued, following the process outlined above.

The warning will normally remain 'live' on the employee's file for 6 months subject to satisfactory performance and conduct during that period.

In cases of capability, a time limit will be set to review the matter (normally between 1 and 3 months). If no significant improvement is made during this time the matter will be progressed to the next stage of the disciplinary procedure.

Written Warning

Where insufficient improvement has been made or a further offence committed since the issue of a verbal warning or the offence is a more serious one, a written warning may be issued, following the process outlined above.

The warning will normally remain 'live' on the employee's file for 9 months subject to satisfactory performance and conduct during that period.

In cases of capability, a time limit will be set to review the matter (normally between 1 and 3 months). If no significant improvement is made during this time the matter will be progressed to the next stage of the disciplinary procedure.

Final Written Warning

Where insufficient improvement has been made or a further offence committed since the issue of a written warning, or if the offence is a serious one, a final written warning may be issued, following the process outlined above.

The warning will normally remain 'live' on the employee's file for 12 months subject to satisfactory performance and conduct during that period.

In some cases the offence may be of such a nature that, while not dismissing the employee, the Company will never accept recurrence from the individual. In such cases the employee will be warned that if they ever commit that offence again they will be dismissed. This will be set out clearly in the warning.

In cases of capability, a time limit will be set to review the matter (normally between 1 and 3 months). If no significant improvement is made during this time the matter will be progressed to the next stage of the disciplinary procedure.

Dismissal

If the employee fails to make the necessary improvements or commits a further offence following a final written warning, or if a very serious offence has been committed then the employee may be dismissed.

If it is decided to dismiss the employee the Director will issue the written reasons for dismissal outlining the right and route of appeal.

In certain cases it may be considered more appropriate to demote the employee as an alternative to dismissal if this is acceptable to the employee, or to suspend the employee without pay for a maximum of 14 days and in either case issue a final written warning.

Gross Misconduct

Certain offences will be considered sufficiently serious as to warrant summary dismissal although such matters will normally still be dealt with in accordance with the preceding paragraph as a dismissal matter (although the notice period will not apply).

Appeal

Any employee who has been subject to formal disciplinary action has the right of appeal, and will be advised of this when any disciplinary action is taken.

Appeals stating the ground(s) on which the disciplinary penalty should be reviewed should be made in writing within 5 days of the date on which they were notified of the warning, to the Managing Director who will make arrangements for the appeal. There will be a right of appeal against dismissal whether for disciplinary or any other reason.

The appeal should be heard by a different manager than the one involved in the disciplinary hearing, although on some occasions, due to the size of the Company, this will not be practicable. The employee concerned has the right to be accompanied by a work colleague or union representative of his or her choice. Appeals, where practical, will be heard within two weeks of the written appeal being received and the decision will be final.

Misconduct Out of Working Hours

The provisions of this procedure may also apply to any act of misconduct committed outside of the Company if it involves other employees and/or is prejudicial to the interests of the Company (see also Company Rules).

Grievance Procedure

Where an employee is unhappy with some aspect of their employment they should speak informally to their Manager in the first instance. It is recognized that many potential grievance issues can be resolved informally and that a quiet word is often all that is required to resolve an issue. However, where an issue cannot be resolved informally then it may be pursued formally using this procedure.

Step One

The employee must write to their Manager setting out the grievance, who will arrange to meet with the employee to discuss the matter. The employee may be accompanied by a work colleague or trade union representative.

The Manager will provide a response to the employee within 14 days of the meeting.

Step Two

If the employee is still not satisfied with the response they may write to the next level of manager (or the Managing Director) who will arrange to meet with the employee to discuss the matter. Again the employee may be accompanied by a work colleague or trade union representative.

The Manager will respond to the employee within 14 days and that decision will be final.

Your capability to perform your job to the standards expected of you may be affected by a number of influences, such as skills, sickness or personal issues. If these are identified then we will work with you to produce a personal action plan for improvement of performance within an agreed time scale. This plan may include additional supervision, changes to hours, leave of absence or new training for example.

If your performance continues to fall below the expected standards or a lack of capability results in serious consequences then a final improvement plan will be devised and implemented. Failure to participate in or reach acceptable levels of capability within that agreed timescale may result in dismissal. Please also refer to the Disciplinary Procedure.

Performance Review

Our policy is to monitor your work performance on a continuous basis so that we can maximise your strengths, and help you overcome any possible weaknesses.

All employees are expected to participate in any performance review process as required.

Professional Drivers

Employees who are, primarily, employed in a driving role will be issued with a separate document outlining the rules and regulations which apply specifically to them.

Training and Development

The company is committed to training and developing employees to meet the needs of the business so that employees can play an active role in the Company's continued success.

Training needs will be assessed by the employee and their line manager which may involve attending training courses, coaching sessions or on-the-job learning.

Where significant investment is made by the company into an employee, a training agreement will be drawn up in order for the Company to recoup some of the costs should an employee leave the Company. If required, this will be explained fully on a one to one basis.

Records of all training will be held in the main office.

We are committed to providing a safe, healthy and productive working environment. This includes ensuring that all staff are fit to carry out their jobs safely and effectively in an environment which is free from alcohol and drug misuse.

The purpose of this policy is to increase awareness of the effects of alcohol and drug misuse and its likely symptoms and to ensure that:

- (a) All staff are aware of their responsibilities regarding alcohol and drug misuse and related problems.
- (b) Staff who have an alcohol or drug-related problem are encouraged to seek help, in confidence, at an early stage.
- (c) Staff who have an alcohol or drug-related problem affecting their work are dealt with sympathetically, fairly and consistently.

This policy is not intended to apply to "one-off" incidents or offences caused by alcohol or drug misuse at or outside work where there is no evidence of an ongoing problem, which may damage our reputation, and which are likely to be dealt with under our Disciplinary Procedure.

We will not accept staff arriving at work under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and/or whose ability to work is impaired in any way by reason of the consumption of alcohol or drugs, or who consume alcohol or take drugs (other than prescription or over the counter medication, as directed) on our premises.

This policy covers all employees, officers, consultants, contractors, casual workers and agency workers.

This policy does not form part of any employee's contract of employment and we may amend it at any time.

Personnel Responsible for this Policy

Our directors have overall responsibility for the effective operation of this policy but have delegated day-to-day responsibility for overseeing its implementation to the Site Manager.

All managers have a specific responsibility to operate within the boundaries of this policy, to ensure that all staff understand the standards of behaviour expected of them and to take action when behaviour falls below its requirements.

Managers will, if appropriate, be given training in:

- a) The nature and causes of alcohol and drug problems.
- b) The effect of alcohol and drug misuse on workplace safety and performance.

Identifying a Problem

If you notice a change in a colleague's pattern of behaviour you should encourage them to seek assistance through their manager. If they will not seek help themselves you should draw the matter to the attention of your manager. You should not attempt to cover up for a colleague whose work or behaviour is suffering as a result of an alcohol or drug-related problem.

If you believe that you have an alcohol or drug-related problem you should seek specialist advice and support as soon as possible. Our Occupational Health Department can assist you and will, where possible, do so in confidence.

Alcohol and Drugs at Work

Alcohol and drugs can lead to attendance issues, reduced efficiency, unsatisfactory performance, impaired judgement and poor decision making. Increased health and safety risks for yourself and others is a major concern. Irresponsible behaviour or the commission of offences resulting from the use of alcohol or drugs may damage our reputation and, as a result, our business.

You are expected to arrive at work fit to carry out your job and to be able to perform your duties safely without any limitations due to the use or after effects of alcohol or drugs. In this policy drug use includes the use of controlled drugs, psychoactive (or mind-altering) substances formerly known as "legal highs", and the misuse of prescribed or over-the-counter medication.

You should not drink alcohol during the normal working day, at lunchtime, at other official breaks and at official work-based meetings and events. Drinking alcohol while at work without authorisation or working under the influence of alcohol will be considered serious misconduct.

You must comply with drink-driving laws and drug-driving laws at all times. Conviction for drink-driving or drug-driving offence may harm our reputation and, if your job requires you to drive, you may be unable to continue to do your job. Committing a drink-driving or drug-driving offence while working for us (or outside working hours) may lead to action under our Disciplinary Procedure and could result in dismissal.

If you are prescribed medication you must seek advice from your GP or pharmacist about the possible effect on your ability to carry out your job. If there are issues you must tell your line manager without delay.

Searches

We reserve the right to conduct searches for alcohol or drugs on our premises, including, but not limited to, searches of lockers, filing cabinets, desks, bags, clothing and packages.

Any alcohol or drugs found as a result of a search will be confiscated and action will be taken under our Disciplinary Procedure.

Drug Screening

The following may be required to participate in a drug screening programme:

- a) All candidates for the following positions: Drivers and plant operators

- b) Any member of staff where there is reasonable cause to suspect that the individual has been under the influence of drugs at work or that their work has been affected by drug misuse.

Drug screening will be conducted by an external provider. Arrangements will be discussed with affected members of staff at the start of each screening programme.

Managing Suspected Substance Misuse

Where a manager considers that a deterioration in work performance and/or changes in patterns of behaviour may be due to alcohol or drug misuse they should seek advice and assistance from Human Resources.

If your manager has reason to believe that you are suffering the effects of alcohol or drugs misuse, they will invite you to an investigatory interview. The purpose of the interview is to:

- a) discuss the reason for the investigation and seek your views on, for example, the deterioration of your work performance and/or behaviour; and
- b) where appropriate, offer to refer you to the Occupational Health Department for medical and/or specialist advice.
- c) If you arrive at work and a manager reasonably believes you are under the influence of alcohol or drugs, they shall immediately contact Human Resources in order that an investigation can be undertaken.

If you agree to be referred to our drug testing agency your manager will request an urgent appointment and prepare a letter of referral, a copy of which will be provided to you.

If, as the result of the meeting or investigation, your manager continues to believe that you are suffering the effects of alcohol or drugs misuse and you refuse an offer of referral to the testing agents, the matter may be dealt with under our Disciplinary Procedure.

Confidentiality

We aim to ensure that the confidentiality of any member of staff experiencing alcohol or drug-related problems is maintained appropriately. However, it needs to be recognised that, in supporting staff, some degree of information sharing is likely to be necessary.

If you seek help with an alcohol or drug-related problem directly from Human Resources or Occupational Health and you wish to keep matters confidential from your manager and colleagues, this will be respected unless there is reason to believe that this could put you, your colleagues or anyone else at risk or carries some other material risk for the business. In those circumstances the Occupational Health advisor will encourage you to inform your manager and will give you sufficient time to do so before discussing the matter with them.

Smoking

Smoking is prohibited in all buildings, out-buildings and yard/grass areas throughout the site.

Changes in Personal Details

Employees must notify HR of any change of name, address, telephone number, next of kin etc so that we can maintain accurate information in our records and make contact with employees in an emergency, if necessary, outside normal working hours.

Dress Code

Employees may come into contact with customers, therefore appearance and dress code is important. All employees are required to wear neat, clean and tidy clothing, appropriate to their job responsibilities in order to maintain a professional image at all times.

Failure to observe this rule may be regarded as gross misconduct.

Personal belongings left on the premises will be at the owner's risk. The Company cannot be held responsible or accept liability for loss or damage to personal property.

Right to Search

For reasons of security, the Company reserves the right to search employees, their possessions and their vehicle at any time on or near to Company property. Any search on a person will be carried out by an authorised person of the same sex. Employees have the right to have a witness present during any such search. Employees have the right to refuse to be searched by the Company, however if the Company suspects criminal activity the police will be contacted.

CCTV and Recording on Premises

Employees should be aware that CCTV operates throughout company premises, which may be used for matters such as health and safety, disciplinary and performance investigations, amongst other uses.

Housekeeping

Individual work areas should be kept clean and tidy at all times.

Confidentiality

In addition to the clause outlined in the individual Statement of Terms and Conditions; employees and former employees are required to:

- maintain the strictest secrecy with regard to the business affairs of the Company and its customers, services and products.

- keep confidential all personal and sensitive information (eg salary, employment record) regarding employees of the Company.
- refrain from revealing or using confidential information regarding systems , programme design and data for personal gain.

Email and Internet Policy

The Company computer systems are maintained solely for conducting company business. The use of the internet and e-mail for any other purpose may be treated as misconduct or in extreme circumstances, as gross misconduct.

The Company reserves the right to access and monitor and disclose all messages created, sent, received or stored on Company systems.

E-mails and the internet must not be used to create, send, receive or store any material which is offensive, obscene, pornographic, disruptive or infringes copyright. The Company's policies on discrimination and harassment apply fully to the internet and e-mails. Downloading, sending or storing e-mail or other media which contains pornography or other obscene material will be treated as gross misconduct.

E-mails and downloads can contain viruses, therefore all e-mails and downloads must be virus checked before opening. You are not allowed to load software onto your computer without the Company's permission.

- a. in the course of the employee's normal duties under such circumstances that an invention might reasonably be expected to result from those duties;
- b. outside the course of employee's normal duties, but during duties specifically assigned to the employee, when an invention might reasonably be expected to result from these;
- c. during the course of any of an employee's duties and at the time the employee had special obligation to further our interests arising from the nature of those duties and the employee's responsibilities.

Secondary Employment

Employees are not allowed without a specific written consent of the Company to be an employee, owner or partner in any other business activity, paid or not paid, outside the Company. Failure to request consent may result in employment being terminated.

Consent can be given provided that the secondary activity in question cannot be regarded as a competing act which violates good business conduct and that does not hinder the employee's dedication to their work for the Company.

Phone Policy

It is a criminal offence to use a hand held telephone whilst driving a vehicle, which includes being stopped if the engine is running.

If drivers need to make or answer a call whether business related or otherwise, they must pull over and switch off the engine.

If a hands-free kit is fitted:

- Do not use the telephone unnecessarily
- Keep the call short
- Pull over if the call is lengthy

The use of Company telephones to make private calls is only permissible in the event of an emergency. To avoid unnecessary interruptions in the workplace the use of personal mobile phones is only permitted if individuals are authorised by a company director. However, employees may be contacted in the event of emergency through the Company telephone number.

Conduct at Work

For the safe and efficient running of the business, employees aside from giving full care and attention to their duties, are expected to conduct themselves responsibly. To help employees the following list gives examples of conduct which will not be acceptable and, should it occur, will likely be treated as a disciplinary matter. The list below is not exhaustive.

Conduct Outside of Work

While the Company has no intention to intrude upon employees activities or interests outside work, the Company would expect that no employees would be engaged in any activity outside working hours which could result in adverse publicity to the business, or which would cause the Company to question an employee's integrity, or which prevents employees from performing their duties/responsibilities to the Company's satisfaction. If that were to happen the employee may be liable to disciplinary action up to and including dismissal.

We maintain a policy of "minimum waste" which is essential to the cost-effective and efficient running of all our operations.

Employees are able to promote this policy by taking extra care during your normal duties by avoiding unnecessary or extravagant use of services, time, energy, etc and the following points are illustrations of this:

- a. Handle machines, equipment and stock with care.
- b. Turn off unnecessary lighting and heating. Keep doors closed at all times.
